Waynesboro, Va. – Lumos Networks (NASDAQ: LMOS), a leading provider of fiber-based products across the Mid-Atlantic region, announced that the Virginia Community Colleges System (VCCS) has chosen Lumos Networks to deliver state-of-the-art broadband services to campuses across Virginia.

In making the announcement, David J. Keller, Senior Vice President Sales, Marketing and Customer Care, said, "Lumos Networks is honored to be selected to assist the VCCS in meeting their growing broadband communications needs. We look forward to extending our robust network and expertise to their efforts to deliver quality higher education and workforce training throughout the state for years to come."

The agreement enables more cost-effective and secure communications as well as enhanced continuity, increased speed and bandwidth over Lumos Networks' Metro Ethernet fiber backbone. The robust fiber network also affords the opportunity for future high-bandwidth applications and services for further expansion.
